AIRA LAUNCHES AIRA FOR VISMA SPIRIS, EXPANDING FROM ONE TO TWO OF SWEDEN'S LARGEST ACCOUNTING PLATFORMS

Aira (AI Revenue Assistant Software Stockholm AB (publ)) today launches Aira for Visma Spiris. Built on the same engine as Aira for Fortnox, it gives Spiris customers an AI sales assistant inside the accounting system they already use. The launch significantly increases Aira's addressable market. Aira for Tripletex in Norway and Aira for e-conomic in Denmark follow in the first quarter of 2027.

Aira turns a company's own invoice history into sales. The assistant shows which customers have stopped buying, which are buying more and which are ready for the next deal. No data entry, no migration, no new system to learn. The data is already in the books.

Spiris, formerly Visma Spcs, has several hundred thousand customers and is one of Sweden's leading accounting platforms. With Fortnox and Spiris, Aira now reaches the two platforms where a large share of Sweden's small businesses run their finances.

Golden tickets for Spiris customers too
Ahead of the Aira for Fortnox launch, companies that signed up received a golden ticket, a personal code for early access. The golden tickets proved a successful and well-received way to reach new customers. Aira is now extending the same offer to Spiris customers, who can sign up for a golden ticket at [link].

Norway and Denmark in Q1
Aira is now building Aira for Tripletex and Aira for e-conomic, with launch planned for the first quarter of 2027. Tripletex has 150,000 customers and is Norway's leading accounting platform. e-conomic has more than 280,000 customers and is Denmark's leading cloud accounting software. With these launches Aira moves from Sweden to all of Scandinavia.

Quote from Daniel Wikberg, CEO and founder of Aira
"We don't sell a new system. We plug into the system the customer already trusts and turn their own data into deals. Fortnox proved the model works, and the feedback from customers has been very positive. Now we look forward to offering Spiris customers the same opportunities and hearing their feedback. With Spiris we reach hundreds of thousands more Swedish businesses, and in the first quarter we take the same model to Norway and Denmark. Same product, same engine, new ecosystems. That’s how you scale."
