

Clavister Wins Contract from a Nordic Critical Infrastructure Agency

Örnsköldsvik, Sweden - 10 September 2024 - Clavister, a leader in European cybersecurity for mission-critical applications, announced today that it has been awarded a contract for Identity and Access Management (IAM) software, initially worth approximately 2 MSEK from a Nordic Critical Infrastructure Agency.

Clavister's IAM software family, marketed under the brand PhenixID, is a set of cybersecurity solutions that address the growing need to manage digital identities and control user access to critical information. The solutions are used by a wide range of public administration customers, especially in the Nordic region.

The new contract welcomes a Nordic public administration agency as a new customer for Clavister's IAM solutions. The agency operates in the field of critical infrastructure, an area that has seen a rapid increase of investments in cybersecurity in the face of increased cyber threats and in response to the new NIS2 directive.

The contract has an initial value to Clavister of approximately 2 MSEK with the potential to increase the deal following expansion of the initial scope.

"We are happy to see that more critical infrastructure actors are strengthening their cybersecurity posture - this is urgently needed to maintain a strong cyber defence," comments John Vestberg, CEO of Clavister and concludes "Our position as a leading vendor in the Nordics is further solidified with this new customer, something we are really proud of."
