

Kaunis Continues Preparations for a Listing

Kaunis Holding has previously announced that it is preparing the company for a listing, which at the earliest was expected to take place during the second half of 2026. The preparations for a listing are well advanced. However, in light of the challenging global and market conditions, particularly in the Middle East, the assessment has been made that there are reasons to await more favorable conditions before listing the company's shares.

The Board of Directors continues to believe that the company belongs in a listed environment. At the same time, it is important to carefully consider the timing of such a listing in order to create the best possible conditions for long-term mining operations in Tornedalen.

Creating Flexibility for the Next Phase

One of the purposes of a potential listing is to establish closer access to the capital markets and build relationships with investors, both new and existing.

"Our ambition remains to create the conditions for long-term mining operations in Tornedalen. The Board agrees that the company belongs in a listed environment, but we will proceed with a listing when market conditions are right," says Klas Dagertun, CEO of Kaunis Holding.
