

Svenska Aerogel CEO in Direkt Studios: “Has never been better positioned”

Svenska Aerogel Holding AB (publ) (“Svenska Aerogel” or “the Company”) continues to gain market traction and expand its customer base. In a recent interview with Direkt Studios, CEO Tor Einar Norbakk shared an update on the company’s progress and explained why he believes the timing is attractive for investors.

Svenska Aerogel currently has 15 commercial-stage customers and more than 170 ongoing customer projects, reflecting broad interest in the company’s aerogel technology and a growing commercial pipeline.

Tor Einar Norbakk comments:

“The company has never been in a stronger position or had greater potential than it does today. Following extensive development work, several customers have launched innovative products based on our aerogel material. We have now reached a stage where the technology is validated, and when larger orders come through from customers such as Outlast® Technologies, it can significantly accelerate our growth. That would also put the company in a fundamentally different position from a financing perspective.”
