With its second largest acquisition to date, Better Collective announces that it has entered into a definitive agreement to acquire all of the issued and outstanding common shares of Playmaker Capital Inc. subject to certain customary closing conditions. Playmaker Capital is a leading digital sports media group operating a strong portfolio of sports media brands across the Americas. Following the closing of the transaction, Playmaker Capital will be a wholly owned subsidiary of Better Collective. Once integrated, Better Collective expects to significantly ramp up its media capabilities and expand its audiences across its sports media portfolio.

Jesper Søgaard, Co-founder & CEO of Better Collective, says: "Acquiring Playmaker Capital is in many ways transformational for Better Collective and will be an important milestone in our journey towards becoming the leading digital sports media group. Upon closing of the acquisition, we will significantly grow our audience and reach a larger segment of generalist sports fans. For years, Playmaker Capital has built incredibly strong sports media brands and excited sports fans across the Americas with high-quality sports content, cultivating a loyal and dedicated following. The skilled team behind Playmaker Capital brings a unique set of media competencies that will boost our organization. Saying that I am excited to welcome the new team to the Better Collective group would be an understatement."

Strong digital sports media position across the Americas

Playmaker Capital is headquartered in Toronto (PMKRF) and its shares are listed on both the TSX Venture Exchange in Canada and the OTCQX in the United States. Playmaker Capital owns and operates prominent sports media brands such as Futbol Sites, Yardbarker and The Nation Network. As at Q3 2023, Playmaker Capital has trailing twelve months revenue of 55 mEUR and EBITDA of 15 mEUR. That implies an EV/EBITDA multiple of 11.7x, which Better Collective expects to bring down to below 5x by 2026e.

Over the past years, Playmaker Capital has acquired and integrated popular sports media brands in order to engage sports fans through authentic sports content and provide strong results to its advertising partners across the Americas. Combined, its portfolio of digital sports media brands has attracted a monthly average of more than 200 million visits and commands a social media following of more than 180 million across Facebook, Instagram, YouTube, TikTok and X (formerly Twitter). The acquisition aligns with Better Collective's strategy of owning and operating leading national sports media brands, and strengthens the group's position as a preferred partner for businesses aiming to activate their brands in a relevant and engaging sports context.

For an extensive period of time and prior to the transaction, Better Collective has formed media partnerships with some of Playmaker Capital's premier sports media brands. Consequently, Better Collective has already established an extensive understanding of and insight into the quality of the Playmaker Capital brands. Across the Americas, Playmaker Capital's leading sports media brands include but are not limited to:

Futbol Sites: A top-ranked, South American digital sports media group with an audience of more than 180 million monthly visits from sport fans. Yardbarker: A popular US sports and entertainment media, attracting more than 13 million monthly visits. Through a combination of an in-house editorial team and more than 300 content syndication partner sites, Yardbarker publishes more than 40,000 full-text articles per month.

The Morning Bark is Yardbarker's daily email newsletter, reaching more than 400,000 subscribers.

The Nation Network (TNN): The marquee brand within TNN is Daily Faceoff, a hockey focused sports media with a large, loyal audience actively consuming content across all channels. TNN also caters for hockey fans on a more localized basis, with team specific sites and bespoke content in every major Canadian sports market. Alongside web properties that generate more than 6.5 million monthly visits, TNN's portfolio also includes 25+ podcasts that generate more than 1 million monthly streams.

In addition to the highlighted sports media brands, Playmaker Capital also operates Wedge, a Paid Media division with a core focus on the US market, which will be integrated into Better Collective's best-in-class Paid Media division. Wedge specializes in employing unique and proprietary user acquisition strategies and runs various web properties specifically curated to deliver audiences directly to regulated online sportsbooks.

Jordan Gnat, Co-founder & CEO of Playmaker Capital, says: "Over the past 12 months I have been talking a lot about a transformational deal for Playmaker and its shareholders that will take this company to the next level. Today's announcement does exactly that and I could not be more excited for the Playmaker family to join the Better Collective family.
