

Magle Biopolymers Launches Dextran Webshop

Online Access to High Grade Dextran Products

Magle Biopolymers, a provider of pharmaceutical-grade biopolymer solutions, announces the launch of its Dextran Webshop, offering a range of high-purity dextran products, including Dextran sulphates and derivatives.

The webshop is designed to provide researchers, formulation scientists, and production teams with an easy method to source dextran materials for use in injectable formulations, infusion stabilisers, diagnostics, and research and development. All products are manufactured under strict quality control standards, ensuring consistent purity and regulatory compliance.

"We have developed the Dextran Webshop to simplify the ordering process and improve access to our products," said Fredrik Andersson, Chief Operating Officer at Magle Group. "This platform will help ensure that our customers can efficiently obtain the dextran products they need."

Through the webshop, customers can view product specifications, place orders, and access product documentation.
