

Netel signs contract with Swedavia for a turnkey power project

Netel has won another new customer by signing a contract with Swedavia for a power project worth approximately SEK 40 million. Swedavia owns, operates and develops the national base of airports in Sweden.

Netel will be given overall responsibility for the project, which includes everything from design to completed construction. The project includes the delivery and installation of high and low voltage switchgear, backup power solutions and several new power stations.

“This extensive and critical project we have won is a testament of our expertise and ability to deliver future-proof solutions,” says Jeanette Reuterskiöld, President and CEO of Netel.
