H100 Group AB appoints Peter C. Warren as Chief Investment Officer

H100 Group AB ("H100" or the "Company") announces that Peter C. Warren has assumed the role of Chief Investment Officer of the Company.

Warren joins the role following H100's recently completed acquisition. Prior to the transaction, Warren, together with H100's Chief Executive Officer Eirik Grøttum, was responsible for managing approximately 2,450 Bitcoin through Moonshot AS and its subsidiary PDI AS. His appointment represents a continuation of this investment management strategy within the combined H100 Group.

As Chief Investment Officer, Warren will lead the continued development of H100's derivative investments and risk management capabilities. This includes the active management strategy conducted through PDI AS, which seeks to generate additional cash flow while managing downside risk and maintaining exposure to Bitcoin's long-term upside potential.

Sander Andersen, Executive Chairman of H100 Group AB, comments:

"Peter brings more than four decades of experience from trading, investment management and global capital markets. Few investors in the Nordics have navigated more market cycles, and that perspective is exactly what a balance sheet of our scale needs from its investment function. Together with Eirik, Peter adds capabilities that are deeply complementary to the rest of the team, and this is the leadership we are building H100's next phase around."

Peter C. Warren, Chief Investment Officer of H100 Group AB, comments:

"The development of the Bitcoin derivatives market, and options in particular, is creating an increasingly broad opportunity set for sophisticated portfolio management. What makes this particularly interesting today is how technology has changed what a small and highly specialized team can accomplish."

"We have developed our own technology that enables us to execute and manage strategies that historically would have required significantly larger trading desks and infrastructure. Combining that technology with H100's Bitcoin holdings gives us an exciting platform from which to operate. Our objective is to use these capabilities to manage risk and generate additional cash flow while retaining exposure to Bitcoin's long-term potential."

About Peter C. Warren

Peter C. Warren has more than 45 years of experience across global capital markets, including as a trader, market maker, fund manager and Chief Investment Officer. His expertise spans investment management, derivatives, capital markets, portfolio and risk management, and financial strategy. He has also founded and built several financial businesses and has extensive board experience across investment and technology companies.
