

Thales selects Diadrom for Trust My Tech

Diadrom Systems AB, a leading software company in Autotech and Autodefense, is entering a collaboration with the French defense and security group Thales through the international innovation program Trust My Tech, facilitated by Kista Science City. The program aims to identify and accelerate technologies that strengthen security, reliability, and digital sovereignty in tomorrow's society.

"We have already demonstrated globally that our expertise in Autotech delivers. The next step is to show how that same competence can create commercial solutions within Autodefense. Through Trust My Tech, we gain a unique platform to put our knowledge into practice and deliver solutions that extend lifecycles, enhance reliability, and make a tangible difference for both the automotive and defense industries," says Viktor Eliasson, CEO of Diadrom Holding AB.

The collaboration is fully aligned with Diadrom's long-term strategy to strengthen its position as a trusted technology partner in secure software development and advanced vehicle diagnostics. Through Trust My Tech, Diadrom gains access to Thales' global network, world-leading expertise, and potential joint projects that can accelerate the company's growth and innovation capacity.

The management of Diadrom assesses that this collaboration is of strategic importance for the company's development.
