

Ortivus strengthens its offering in the Swedish market with new products and an agreement with Cambio

Ortivus continues to develop its offering for the Swedish market. At this year's Swedish User Days, the company unveiled new products, including the next generation of MobiMed Pocket with video functionality, and signed an agreement with Cambio.

Ortivus has a very strong market share in Sweden and continues to see considerable interest in digital solutions that help deliver more efficient, safer and more coordinated care. This year's User Days brought together customers and users from across the country to share experience, engage in dialogue and explore current and future digital support across the care pathway.

During the event, Ortivus presented several new products, including a new generation of MobiMed Pocket with integrated video functionality. This new functionality offers enhanced opportunities for communication, documentation and decision support close to the patient.

"There is a strong sense of progress, both among our customers and within Ortivus. The strong engagement at the User Days, together with our new product launches, shows that we are well positioned to continue delivering value for Swedish healthcare," says Elias Obaid, Chief Commercial Officer at Ortivus.

Ortivus has also signed an agreement with Cambio and is a certified integration partner for Cambio COSMIC. This strengthens Ortivus' ability to offer solutions that can integrate with healthcare's core information systems and enable information to flow more effectively across care settings.

"Our agreement with Cambio and our certification as an integration partner for Cambio COSMIC are strategically important for Ortivus. They create even better opportunities to support healthcare professionals with accessible, relevant information in their day-to-day work," says Gustaf Nordenhök, Chief Executive Officer of Ortivus.

Ortivus will continue to invest in user-centred product development, quality and secure integrations, with the aim of supporting healthcare professionals in their daily work and contributing to safer patient care.
