

Katarina Grönwall appointed new Vice President Communication & Sustainability at Ratos

Ratos has appointed Katarina Grönwall as Vice President Communication & Sustainability. She will join Ratos's management team and assume the position on 17 March 2025 at the latest.

Katarina Grönwall has over 30 years of experience in management roles within communications and sustainability as well as extensive experience working in management groups for listed companies. She will join Ratos from her role as Chief Sustainability and Communications Officer at OX2 and has previously held several similar roles, including at the Skanska Group, the Sweco Group and Handelsbanken. Katarina has also been a partner at the communications firm Hallvarsson & Halvarsson.

"I'm very happy to have recruited Katarina Grönwall. She has long-standing, broad experience in communications and sustainability, which are central areas in Ratos's continued growth. We are continuing to develop and transform at a rapid pace. I am convinced that 2025 will be an exciting year and that Katarina's previous experience will bring great value to Ratos," says Jonas Wiström, President and CEO of Ratos.

"Ratos is a robust company in an exciting phase and I look forward to continuing to develop and drive communications and sustainability as they're integrated into the business. The strategy for the coming years will involve continued transformation, including divestments of existing subsidiaries to become a more focused business group, primarily within technological solutions. It will be incredibly exciting to work actively on the development of the company and I look forward to becoming a part of the Ratos team," says Katarina Grönwall, incoming Vice President Communication & Sustainability.

As previously announced, Ratos's current Vice President Communication & Sustainability, Josefine Uppling, decided to leave the company to pursue a new role elsewhere.
