
Martin Granlund appointed new CFO at Freemelt

Nasdaq First North-listed Freemelt – whose groundbreaking solutions enhance the possibility for rapid growth and development in 3D printing – appoints Martin Granlund as new CFO. Martin Granlund has extensive experience in the financial industry, such as from SEB, Nasdaq OMX and as CFO of the Dutch company TOM, The Order Machine. He will take up the position in March 2023 and will join the company's management team.

Martin Granlund has held prominent positions in the financial sector since 1999. During his time at Nasdaq OMX, he was responsible for, among other things, the offering in the Nordic derivatives markets. Martin Granlund comes most recently from the Swedish National Debt Office in the role of crisis planner for the banking sector.

"I'm very attracted to the phase Freemelt is in right now. They have proven good technology and have in a short time established a strong position in 3D printing and are now about to take the next step in the company's scale-up and growth journey. There, my previous experiences will be able to contribute to the continued development", says Martin Granlund, incoming CFO at Freemelt.

Martin Granlund will take up the position in March 2023, succeeding Jonas Fogelberg, who has acted as interim CFO in 2022.

"Martin Granlund's solid experience from the financial sector, together with his entrepreneurial spirit and engaging leadership, will be valuable in the work with our rapid expansion and continued commercialization as well as industrialization of Freemelt. I'm very pleased to welcome Martin to the Freemelt team," says Daniel Gidlund, Freemelt's CEO.
