Instalco wins assignment at Skanska's new head office

The Instalco subsidiary, Ohmegi Elektro AB, has been contracted for the electrical and telecom installations at a new office building called Olivin, located on Kungholmen, Stockholm. The building will, among others, serve as the new head office for Skanska and the order value for Instalco is approximately SEK 50 million.

Olivin is a new office complex that is being built in the Lindhagen district of Västra Kungsholmen in Stockholm. Upon completion, the building will comprise 11 floors and offer 23,000 square metres of lettable space, characterized by a striking triangular design.

"We have a good relationship with Skanska and many years of experience collaborating with them on projects like this. At Olivin, the work will entail a great deal of reused materials and alternative products, according to the customer's requirements," says Johan Brodin, CEO at Ohmegi Elektro.

The project has recently started for Ohmegi Elektro, and it is expected to be completed towards the end of 2026. Other key objectives are to achieve LEED Platinum certification, along with NollCO2 certification issued by the Sweden Green Building Council. Another goal is to certify the project as a Sustainable Instalco Project.

Due to its structural complexity and demanding timeline, this assignment will require meticulous planning and delivery coordination, with successful collaboration among all parties being crucial. A strong emphasis will be placed on innovative approaches to sustainability and reuse, aiming to stay at the leading edge of development in these fields.
