

Castellum's share retains Nasdaq Green Equity Designation

Castellum's share has once again been confirmed as green on Nasdaq Stockholm, meaning that the company continues to meet all the criteria for retaining its Green Equity Designation.

The Nasdaq Green Equity Designation aims to provide investors with clearer information about companies that meet strict sustainability standards. Designation as a green equity requires that at least 50 per cent of revenue and investments can be defined as green and that less than 5 per cent of assets are linked to fossil fuels. The most recent independent review conducted by S&P Global Shades of Green determined that 56 per cent of Castellum's revenue and 72 per cent of its investments were green.

"It is gratifying that Castellum continues to meet the criteria for Nasdaq Green Equity Designation. This makes it easier for investors seeking long-term sustainable investments and it facilitates transparency in the capital market," says Joacim Sjöberg, CEO of Castellum Aktiebolag.

"Green investments will be crucial for reaching our shared climate targets. The Nasdaq Green Equity Designation helps to direct capital towards solutions that promote sustainable societal development," says Filip Elland, Chief Sustainability Officer of Castellum Aktiebolag.
