AQUADOR COMPLETES LARGEST PRODUCT RENEWAL IN 20 YEARS THROUGH THE LAUNCH OF A NEW GENERATION OF BOATS

Nimbus Group's AB (publ) brand Aquador is launching a completely new generation of boats in what is the brand's most comprehensive product renewal in 20 years as of this summer.

First up will be the new 300 HT, which today will have its sneak preview when the first copy of the new boat comes to Stockholm for photography. The official premiere of the 300 HT will be on August 18 at UIVA in Helsinki, while its little sister the 250 HT will be launched later this autumn. In 2023, it is time for the launch of the largest boat developed by Aquador to date – the new 380 HT.

Aquador is a well-known brand with a long history and has come to be associated with smart functionality combined with Scandinavian design and elegance. Of course, these characteristics also feature in the new model series, which is also characterized by high safety and quality. The new generation of boats has been redesigned both externally and internally, and among the innovations is a new hardtop design that combines all a cabin boat's advantages with those of a fully open boat. The new AquaDynamic hull has features that allow the boats to plane at lower speeds while requiring significantly less throttle to reach cruising speed, resulting in lower fuel consumption and less of an impact on the environment. Aquador's new model range has also been developed with vacuum injection, a construction method that optimizes material consumption and provides the least possible environmental impact in production. When it comes to engine options, the boats have classic inboard options, and some models are also available with outboards.

The boats of the Aquador brand are manufactured by Finland's Bella Boats, which since 2018 has been part of the Nimbus Group.

"With this launch, Nimbus Group is further broadening its offering to customers of attractive boats with leading Scandinavian design. Aquador has gained a very strong position in the boat market and will strengthen it further thanks to this product renewal, the brand's most extensive in 20 years," says Jan-Erik Lindström, CEO of Nimbus Group.
