

Norwegian company Solid Rådgivning joins XPartners

XPartners is strengthening its position in Norway's energy and industrial segments and welcomes Solid Rådgivning AS to the group. Solid is a consulting firm delivering project administrative services across the full lifecycle of construction, industrial and energy-infrastructure projects, with a clear focus on the Nordic energy and power grid sector.

Solid Rådgivning was founded in February 2023 and is based in Aukra municipality just outside Molde. The company has twelve employees and provides project management, technical advisory, process management, construction management, HSE advisory and HSE coordination (KU) during the execution phase, as well as technical inspections and construction loan control. In the previous financial year, the company generated approximately NOK 15 million in revenue and has grown significantly in 2025.

"We are pleased to welcome Solid Rådgivning to XPartners. They add sought-after capacity in project administration and leadership on both the contractor and client sides, with a particular focus on energy and power grid projects. Together with our Norwegian companies, we can deliver more integrated solutions from early planning through to completion," says Sonny Mirborn, CEO of XPartners Group.

Solid Rådgivning works closely with clients across the entire value chain, ensuring structure, progress, quality and compliance in complex assignments.

"Becoming part of XPartners gives us the opportunity to collaborate more closely with other specialists in the network. We will continue to be Solid in our day-to-day work and look forward to contributing our experience, network and expertise. At the same time, this enables us to develop and grow as a company. Our main focus will remain delivering high quality and creating added value for our clients," says Tor Magne Johansen, Managing Director and Senior Adviser at Solid Rådgivning.
