

Modular Finance launches new website

During the last couple of years Modular Finance has, parallell to a strong growth in existing products, launched a number of new solutions to the financial markets. With the new website we have visualized all products in a new and structured approach and at the same time we better describe Modular Finance as a workplace and employer.

Modular Finance has become a company with two separate business units, Bank & Finance and Listed companies. We have chosen to describe these business areas separately, and further we also present each product in a more detailed manner. With quotes from a couple of our customers we hope to give the visitors an idea of how the products are perceived.

The new website is created for both existing and potential customers, but the idea is that it also should give more depth to Modular Finance as an employer. This is done by adding more information about the company and the roles that we look for, but also through the launch of a Tech Blog that we hope can give som more insight into our development department. To sum up, our ambition increase our communication regarding major news events in the company.
