

Norwegian consultancy Teknaconsult joins XPartners

XPartners continues to grow in Norway and now welcomes Teknaconsult AS to the group. The acquisition strengthens the group's expertise in project and construction management, adding specialist knowledge in the early phases of building and infrastructure projects, with a strong position in data centers.

Founded in 2005, Teknaconsult is headquartered in Sandnes. The company has just over ten employees and provides multidisciplinary services in total design management, project management, permitting processes, and infrastructure planning. In recent years, Teknaconsult has built a strong niche within data centers, while also delivering projects for residential, infrastructure, industry, storage, and other commercial developments.

"Teknaconsult adds valuable expertise in a segment that is rapidly growing and highly relevant to the development of our societies. Their experience in data center projects and strong local presence create new opportunities for collaboration across the group," says Sonny Mirborn, CEO of XPartners.

"Joining XPartners is an exciting opportunity for us. We look forward to developing together with other specialist companies in the group while continuing to build close relationships with our clients," says Helge Nilsen, CEO of Teknaconsult.
