

Norwegian consultancy Front Group joins XPartners

XPartners strengthens its energy offering in Norway by welcoming Front Group AS to the group. Based in Molde, Front delivers project management, operations readiness and control systems services to clients in the Norwegian energy industry, from early project phase through to day-to-day operations.

Front Group works across four areas: projects, operations, HSE and controls. Assignments follow the facilities from early project phase, through operations readiness and commissioning, and into day-to-day operations. The company was founded in 2012, has its office in Molde and around 15 employees. Revenue in 2025 exceeded NOK 40 million.

“We are pleased to welcome Front Group to XPartners. They bring expertise in control systems, automation and operations readiness, and have long-standing relationships with their clients in the Norwegian energy industry. Together we can take broader responsibility for moving complex facilities from project to safe operation,” says Christian Nørgaard Madsen, Managing Director of XPartners Norway.

Most of Front's assignments are carried out in the energy sector, with the remainder in adjacent infrastructure. This includes power from shore and solutions for remote operations, where control systems and well-prepared operations determine the outcome. The same expertise applies to other businesses with complex facilities, such as power grids, process industry, data centres and renewable energy, and Front has already delivered remote operations work in aquaculture.

“We are proud to become part of XPartners. At Front, we believe the best results come from long-term relationships, both with our clients and between colleagues. XPartners brings together entrepreneur-led companies that work the same way, and that makes it the right environment for us to build on,” says Helge Gautvik, CEO of Front Group.
