BLINCVISION SIGNS EVALUATION AGREEMENT IN INDUSTRIAL AUTOMATION

BlincVision has signed an evaluation agreement with a Swedish industrial company. The evaluation will explore how BlincVision's high-speed sensor technology can be used in industrial automation to improve production flows and strengthen quality control.

The customer is a Swedish industrial company with manufacturing operations in Sweden and Germany, supplying solutions to industries including automotive and defence. The company has developed its own AI-based solutions that use cameras to identify and classify different components. As part of the evaluation, the companies will explore whether BlincVision's sensor technology can improve performance in the customer's industrial applications.

"Industrial automation is an interesting area for our technology. The ability to quickly identify and analyse what is happening in a production flow can contribute to both higher efficiency and quality. Together with the customer, we now have the opportunity to evaluate our technology in a real industrial environment and see where it can create the most value," says Markus Johansson, CEO of BlincVision.

The evaluation is part of BlincVision's work to expand the use of its technology across different markets and applications.
