

engcon Secures Another Prestigious Award

engcon, the leading global manufacturer of tiltrotators, has once again been recognized with an award. This time, it is engcon and its CEO, Krister Blomgren, who are honored in the category “The Small Cap Presenter of the Year,” competing against, among others, Academia, Bravida, and Storytel.

The commendation emphasizes the admirable presentation by engcon's CEO, Krister Blomgren, throughout the past year, particularly noteworthy as engcon transitioned from a Small Cap to Midcap amid a challenging business landscape for companies of comparable sizes. The recognition also highlights engcon's achievement in expanding its market share despite the volatility in the business environment.

- I am proud of engcon's achievements over the past year and the consecutive recognition, states Krister Blomgren, CEO of engcon Group. It's especially gratifying to be acknowledged alongside larger players in the stock market; it demonstrates that making an international breakthrough is possible for a Norrland-based industrial company, he adds.

The FH Presentation Award has been presented for the past 30 years. The judging panel consists of representatives from the media, stockbrokers, as well as IR and PR consultants. They assess Swedish public presentations for the financial market based on three key criteria: continuity, reach, and performance.
