

Exsitec becomes Global Partner to Litium – strengthening its digital commerce offering

Exsitec takes the next step in its digital commerce strategy by becoming a Global Partner to Litium, a leading platform for data-driven e-commerce and PIM. The partnership strengthens Exsitec's business-critical IT offering and creates new opportunities for customers with international growth ambitions.

- This is an important milestone for us. We clearly see increasing market demand for scalable and flexible e-commerce solutions that can grow alongside the business. Through our partnership with Litium, we combine a powerful platform with our expertise in ERP, integrations and business development, says My Ljungberg, Business Area Manager at Exsitec.

Through this partnership, Exsitec strengthens its position within composable commerce and further establishes its role as a full-service partner in digital commerce. By integrating Litium's platform with business-critical systems, Exsitec enables efficient and future-proof digital solutions.

- Our customers need solutions that work in real life – where e-commerce, ERP and other core processes operate seamlessly together. That's where we are strongest. Together with Litium, we can help even more companies accelerate their digital journey, says Victor Stern, Sales Manager at Exsitec.

The initiative is part of Exsitec's long-term growth strategy and ambition to continue expanding together with its customers – built on quality, business focus and long-term relationships.
