Unika opens specialized LSS unit for people with Prader-Willi syndrome in Mölndal

Today, a new LSS unit in Mölndal has been inaugurated by Unika. The residence is the fifth in Sweden (of which four are operated by Unika) with a focus on individuals with Prader-Willi syndrome, a target group with a need for a high degree of specialised support and adapted working methods. Attendo operates its LSS services under the Unika brand, which was launched in September 2024.

Unika has, over several years, built up specific expertise in Prader-Willi syndrome and developed services adapted to the needs of the target group. The establishment in Mölndal is part of Unika's long-term work to meet increased demand for individualised care of high quality.

"We see a great need for specialised care with the right competence for individuals with complex needs. Our strength lies in developing specialised care where knowledge, structure and the individual's needs are at the centre," says Emelie Mossberg, Segment Manager at Unika.

Demand for specialised care is increasing, as is the need for the right competence within different areas of disability care. As each individual municipality in Sweden cannot have the specialist expertise required to meet all types of care throughout all stages of life, Unika can be the reliable partner and provider that municipalities can turn to.

About Unika

Attendo's combined offering within LSS (the Swedish Act Concerning Support and Service for Persons with Certain Functional Impairments) operates under the Unika brand. Unika comprises around 180 services within disability care across Sweden. Its mission is to create a safe and supportive environment that enables a meaningful and independent life. Unika provides a wide range of LSS services, including group homes, service apartments, day activities, residential care for children, and short-term stays. A common denominator across all Unika services is a strong focus on each individual's abilities, combined with a commitment to quality and tailored solutions. Unika also offers specialised services in areas such as co-occurring conditions, Prader-Willi syndrome, and sign language environments.
