JUMPGATE SUBSIDIARY TIVOLA GAMES FINISHES WORK ON PROTOTYPE FINANCED BY A GRANT FOR VIDEO GAMES SUPPORTED BY GAMECITY HAMBURG

Jumpgate subsidiary Tivola Games has finished its work on a game prototype for the game "Pet Universe" that received a grant by Gamecity Hamburg (part of Hamburg Kreativ Gesellschaft) for video games in 2025 and 2026. After very positive initial feedback for the finished playable prototype, Tivola Games is going to publicly present it at GDC in San Francisco this week.

"We are extremely satisfied with the work the team at Tivola Games has done in the last months. They've created an amazing prototype that plays and looks great and is very on brand for a company that has a long tradition of cute and cozy animal games. The feedback by everyone who has seen the game so far has been exceptionally positive, so we're very much looking forward to presenting the game at the GDC in San Francisco this week to possible publishers", says Harald Riegler, CEO Jumpgate.
