

Norwegian technical consulting firm VIAM joins XPartners

XPartners is strengthening its Norwegian platform within technical project management by welcoming VIAM Norge AS to the group. The company adds specialist expertise in technical project management and ITB, complemented by a broader offering in technical advisory and project support.

Based in Kjellstad outside of Drammen, VIAM provides services within technical project management and ITB, as well as procurement and contracts, project support, requirement and functional specifications, follow-up of commissioning, due diligence and technical construction management. The company also offers services within design management, energy management and energy certification. Revenue in 2025 amounted to more than NOK 25 million.

“VIAM adds specialist expertise that fits well with the continued development of our Norwegian platform. The company has a strong offering within technical project management and ITB, complemented by services that broaden the group’s capabilities in Norway,” says Christian Nørgaard Madsen, Managing Director of XPartners Norway.

Founded in 2021, VIAM helps customers create structure and coordination in technically demanding projects, with services spanning planning, procurement, commissioning follow-up and technical construction management.

“Becoming part of XPartners marks an exciting new chapter for VIAM. We look forward to continuing to develop our business as part of a broader group of specialist companies and to contributing with our expertise in technical project management and ITB,” says Rune Gulbrandsen, co-founder of VIAM.
