New legislation in California creates business opportunities for Medclair

On January 1, 2027, a new nitrous oxide law will take effect in California, which is expected to increase the need for the safe management and destruction of confiscated nitrous oxide canisters. Medclair has already engaged in concrete dialogues with state authorities and sees opportunities to establish its technology in the US market. The initiative is a further step in the company's expansion in North America, where Medclair also recently announced a strategic Letter of Intent (LOI) with a major international industrial player.

The new legislation restricts the sale and distribution of certain nitrous oxide products. During a recent market visit, Medclair engaged in dialogues with state authorities in California seeking solutions for the management and destruction of confiscated and abandoned nitrous oxide canisters. The combination of a growing regulatory need, concrete customer dialogues, and the company's experience from similar operations in Europe creates favorable conditions for establishing a presence in the US market.

Concurrently, Medclair has identified interest within Healthcare and Dental. Together with the recently announced LOI, which concerns the development and commercialization of products based on the company's new technology platform, this strengthens the prospects for a broader establishment in the North American market.

“We see a growing interest in our technology in North America. The new legislation in California creates concrete business opportunities, while our recently announced LOI paves the way for broader commercialization. Our ambition is to gradually establish customer relationships and build an installed base across our three business areas. This creates conditions for both upselling and growing recurring revenues”, says Jonas Lundh, CEO of Medclair.
