

Clavister Selected as Supplier by a Major European Defence Company

Örnsköldsvik, Sweden - 20 February 2024 - Clavister, a leader in European cybersecurity for mission-critical applications, announced today that it has been selected as supplier by a major European defence company.

Clavister has been selected as a supplier of cybersecurity for an advanced defence solution developed by a major European defence company. The company, which is a new customer to Clavister as per this appointment, is part of a multi-national group that develops and manufactures a wide range of defence systems used by several armed forces around the world.

The solution which Clavister will be part of has an expected commercial longevity of at least 20 years, and requires advanced cybersecurity capabilities due to its complex and highly digitalised nature. The customer selected Clavister as supplier after a thorough evaluation process. Deliveries will commence during 2025.

The appointment and contract mark an important milestone in the expansion of Clavister's tactical security business. The Clavister CyberArmour product family, which has seen several recent successful deployments in land-based applications, for instance with the BAE Systems' CV90 infantry fighting vehicle, continues to expand into new customer applications.

Given the nature of the business and defence confidentiality, Clavister is not able to disclose further information about the customer or the specific program.

John Vestberg, CEO of Clavister: "We are honoured to be appointed as cybersecurity vendor to this renowned European defence company. We are growing our footprint with our tactical security solutions in more major defence companies across Europe which is an important step for us on our mission to cyber-secure Europe".
