

FlexQube wins order worth SEK 2.4 million through new partnership

FlexQube has received an order worth approximately SEK 2.4 million for the delivery of material handling carts to a well-known German automotive manufacturer with a plant in the United States. The order is a direct result of the partnership agreement signed at the end of March between FlexQube and Transpofix GmbH and represents the first concrete outcome of the joint commercial efforts between the two companies.

The order includes carts designed to be used in combination with Transpofix's tugger train solution and will be delivered during the third quarter of 2025.

CEO Anders Fogelberg comments: "By combining our expertise and delivery capabilities for carts with our broad customer base in North America, we are now able to offer a mechanical tugger train system tailored for demanding production environments. This order also shows that the collaboration brings value in both directions, where Transpofix's existing customer relationships can open up new opportunities for us to sell carts through their network."
