

Berner Industrier's subsidiaries strengthen their Nordic position in Vibration Technology

Berner Industrier's four Nordic subsidiaries Christian Berner are creating a stronger Nordic platform for customer value, expertise and growth.

On September 1st, the four Nordic Christian Berner-companies establish Vibration Technology Nordics by gathering their operations in vibration technology in Sweden, Norway, Finland and Denmark in a joint Nordic organization. The new organization consists of approximately 15 specialists and is being established to strengthen customer value, increase collaboration between markets and create a scalable platform for continued growth in the Nordic region.

By combining a local presence with Nordic expertise and shared resources, the local Christian Berner companies can create even greater value for customers, suppliers and partners throughout the region. The aim is to create quiet environments that protect people, buildings, and sensitive equipment. The starting point is always the reality of the project: its specific conditions and the customer needs. By understanding the source of the vibrations, selecting and correctly dimensioning the right isolation solution, and managing the project from the initial sketch to the commissioned solution, Christian Berner is there to support. The result is lower maintenance, fewer disruptions and a longer service life for both structures and machinery.

"The Nordic market is becoming increasingly integrated at the same time as projects are becoming larger and more complex. By pooling our expertise and resources, we can create even greater value for our customers and partners. Our ambition is simple: Nordic strength. Local presence. It is about combining the capacity of a Nordic organization with the close customer relationships and local market knowledge that have always been at the core of our business," says Rasmus Ekberg, Nordic Sales Director, who will lead the new organization.

Vibration Technology Nordics operates through Christian Berner's existing local companies, while the organization enables increased coordination, knowledge sharing and closer collaboration across national borders.

The new structure strengthens Christian Berner's position in the Nordic market and creates a long-term platform for continued growth and increased customer value in sound and vibration insulation.
