

Ratos company Presis Infra secures new contracts amounting to NOK 3 billion in the first half of 2024

During the first half of 2024, Ratos company Presis Infra, which specialises in the maintenance of critical infrastructure including ferry quay operation and maintenance, and rockfall protection in Norway and Sweden, was awarded new contracts amounting to NOK 3 billion. In total, there are nine new contracts in both Norway and Sweden, signed with existing customers, with terms from 2024 to 2030.

“As we summarise the first half of 2024, we can state that Presis Infra’s development has been positive and that the company’s establishment in Sweden, which began in 2023, is progressing well. Maintenance of critical infrastructure will play an important role in the future in Norway and Sweden, and Presis Infra has what it takes to succeed and the expertise to do so in a cost-efficient and sustainable manner,” says Christian Johansson Gebauer, Board member of Presis Infra and President, Business Area Construction & Services, Ratos.

The contracts were signed with Norwegian municipalities, the Norwegian Public Roads Administration (NPRA) and the Swedish Transport Administration, and the projects are spread throughout Norway and in Järna in Sweden.

“We are proud of the confidence our clients have shown in us and look forward to continuing our productive partnership. We are particularly extra proud that we get received such high scores on the mandatory climate elements in the procurements we won. In addition to other compulsory requirements such as price and project understanding, we are strong when it comes to sustainability aspects,” says Eivind Iden, CEO, Presis Infra.
