

Victoria Woyland, Vice President Volvo connected solutions is proposed as board member of Ekobot

Before of the Extraordinary General Meeting on June 30, 2021, Ekobot's nomination committee presents Victoria Woyland as a proposal for a new member of the Board of Ekobot AB (Publ)

Victoria Woyland is currently vice president of Connected Solutions, which develops connected and digital services within the Volvo Group. Victoria has a broad background in areas such as aftermarket, business development and IT and digital service development, and has held several leading positions within the Volvo Group. Prior to her time at the Volvo Group, she has experience from, among others, Volvo Cars and the consulting industry. Victoria has solid experience of driving change and transformation in a global context. She lives in Kullavik outside Gothenburg and has a degree in civil engineering from Chalmers University of Technology.

Victoria motivation to accept the nomination committee's offer for a board member in Ekobot:
- It is with great joy and energy that I accepted the offer of a place as a board member of Ekobot. In addition to Ekobot having a very interesting product with great potential and societal benefit, the company is also in an important phase where I see that I can contribute with my experience in customer-centric development and scaling of digital services and business development.

About Ekobot

Ekobot is the result of the founder Ulf Nordbeck's thoughts and desire to combine robotics and healthy sustainable food production. Ekobot's goal is to be able to offer practical and sustainable solutions to agricultural issues while reducing workload with autonomous tools for vegetable farmers. Ekobot has grown and combined today a team of experts in agricultural robotics with shareholders who share their convictions and understand the challenges of start-ups.
