

Hexicon Granted Entry to the Business Accelerator Program Southeast Asia (BAPSEA)

Hexicon is proud to announce its acceptance into the Business Accelerator Program Southeast Asia (BAPSEA) facilitated by the Swedish Energy Agency and Business Sweden. This exclusive opportunity grants Hexicon access to a wide range of resources, expert guidance, and networking prospects with industry leaders, government officials, and potential business partners.

"We are thrilled to be accepted into this highly competitive program among a myriad of accomplished applicants. This opportunity, coupled with our existing projects and collaborations in the Asian market, reinforces our commitment to driving sustainable energy development in the region. We are confident that through BAPSEA, we will further accelerate our operations and forge valuable partnerships that will shape the future of the floating wind industry in Southeast Asia," says Marcus Thor, CEO of Hexicon.

Asia is known for spearheading new developments in the floating wind sector and stands as one of the key markets within the industry. The selection process for BAPSEA has been intensely competitive, with numerous applicants vying for this prestigious opportunity. Participation in the program includes a multitude of resources, expert guidance, and networking activities with renowned industry leaders, government officials, and potential business partners. Through workshops, seminars, and tailored consulting services, Hexicon aims to deepen its understanding of the energy markets in Southeast Asia while simultaneously identifying growth opportunities in the region.
