

CHEFFELO BRINGS FLEXIBLE MEALKITS TO FINNISH HOUSEHOLDS

Cheffelo, the Nordic mealkit company behind Godtlevvert in Norway, Linas in Sweden and Retnemt in Denmark, is launching their mealkits in Finland under the Cheffelo brand. The company's website is live and the first mealkits will be delivered to Finnish households in the Helsinki region starting already in September.

The launch gives Finnish customers a new way to plan and cook everyday dinners, with 150 dishes to choose from each week. Customers can select two to five dinners per week for two to six portions through the Cheffelo app or website. The menu covers a wide range of tastes and preferences, with all dishes both nutritionally and climate calculated.

The service is designed for households that want more variety at dinner, less time spent planning and shopping, and ingredients delivered in the right amounts to avoid food waste. All dishes are nutritionally and climate calculated.

"Many families want to eat varied, home-cooked dinners, but planning and shopping can be difficult in a busy week. We believe our flexible mealkit service can make everyday dinners easier for Finnish households," says Walker Kinman, CEO at Cheffelo.
