Annelunds Tak in new roof deal – 43,000 sqm roof on top of Jula's warehouse expansion in Skara

Annelunds Tak, one of the Soltech Group's roofing companies, has signed an extensive contract to install 43,000 sqm of roofs on Jula's large warehouse expansion in Skara. The agreement also includes an option for an additional 3,000 sqm and will be executed for the construction and property developer Skeppsviken Bygg i Skövde. The project will start in April.

Annelunds Tak offers complete solutions in roofing contracting, including sedum. Since its entry into the Soltech Group, the company has also developed into a full-range company where solar energy solutions, electric car charging and energy storage are also included in the company's offering.

The company has extensive experience in roofing for logistics properties and other types of roofing contracts on low-pitched roofs. High quality materials included in the offer and skilled installers are crucial for both reliability and sustainability. Annelunds Tak has signed an agreement with Skeppsviken Bygg i Skövde to contribute to the new production of the extension part of Jula's distribution center in Skara. The roofing that the company will carry out corresponds to an area of just over six full-size football pitches*.

Jula's distribution center currently amounts to approximately 180,000 square meters and will grow to just over 220,000 square meters with this expansion.

"It feels fantastic and we are honored to be responsible for the roofing of the new production of Jula's major logistics expansion. This is a project that really shows the strength of our offering and our capacity and we thank Skeppsviken Bygg i Skövde for the trust. We look forward to contribute in the project with our expertise and to deliver a high-quality project," says Mikael Markusson, CEO of Annelunds Tak.

The project will start in April and Jula expects the warehouse expansion to be put into operation during 2026.

Full-size football pitch estimated at 7,140 sqm*
