

Nyfosa changes name to Altra Fastigheter

Nyfosa is changing its name to Altra Fastigheter, as part of implementing the company's updated strategy. The company's operations and the fundamental focus remain, but with a sharper positioning and direction aimed at optimising value creation for the company's tenants and shareholders.

The company has recently updated its strategy and clarified its direction going forward, guided by three prioritised focus areas – strengthening operational efficiency, reducing complexity and optimising capital allocation.

“Changing our name is a natural step in our strategic development. Altra, which in Italian means “other”, is built on the belief of always daring to see the alternative – because that is when truly great decisions are made. Through a structured and curious approach to each property and investment, we create stronger long-term value, and better places to do business in”, comments Carl-Johan Hugner, CEO of Altra Fastigheter.

The group as well as all operations in Sweden are changing their name to Altra Fastigheter. In Finland, the company continues to operate under the Kielo brand and in Norway under the Bratsberg brand.

The company's share will shortly be traded under a new short name and ticker, ALTRA, on Nasdaq Stockholm. The ticker for outstanding bonds will also change. The ISIN codes for both the share and the bonds will remain unchanged.
