Aixia receives strategically important SEK 9 million data protection order for AI environment

White Pearl Technology Group AB (publ) ("WPTG" or the "Group") announces that Aixia Group AB (publ) ("Aixia") has secured a strategically important order from an existing Swedish customer operating within AI and the automotive industry. The order relates to a significant expansion of the customer's data protection platform and has an initial order value of approximately SEK 9 million. The full announcement from Aixia follows below.

Aixia has received a strategically important order from an existing Swedish customer operating within AI and the automotive industry. The order covers a significant expansion of the customer's existing data protection platform and has an initial value of approximately SEK 9 million.

The customer develops advanced AI-based solutions and manages very large volumes of valuable data that form a critical part of its development activities. The investment expands the capacity for secure data protection, backup and recovery to support continued data growth and increasingly demanding requirements for availability and resilience.

The solution is based on a modern, scalable data protection architecture designed for large and rapidly growing data volumes. The platform enables centralized data protection, automated backup and rapid recovery in the event of technical failures, operational incidents or cyberattacks.

"Data is one of the most important assets for companies developing advanced AI solutions. As data volumes continue to grow, so do the requirements for how that data is protected, stored and recovered. This investment is therefore strategically important for the customer, and we are very proud of the continued trust placed in Aixia to develop such a critical part of their AI infrastructure," says Mattias Bergkvist, CEO of Aixia.

The order further strengthens Aixia's position within AI infrastructure and data protection and demonstrates the breadth of the company's offering, spanning compute infrastructure and storage to security, data protection and the operation of business-critical environments.
