

ViaCon wins order for delivering sustainable infrastructure solutions

ViaCon has won an order for delivering rainwater harvesting tanks for a sustainable solution, along with Gabion Walls solutions for a datacenter project in Sweden. The project value exceeds SEK 40 million.

"I am pleased to share the news that ViaCon Sweden has secured this deal. We were awarded the contract based on our knowledge and experience but also because of our strong sustainability offering, which was an important factor in this customer's decision-making which this customer placed high demands on their business partner," says Stefan Nordström, President and CEO of ViaCon.

ViaCon's role in this venture involves delivering a rainwater harvesting system, along with Gabion Wall solutions. The comprehensive Project Scope encompasses design, production, and installation. The production of water tanks takes place in Lycksele in Sweden, while prefilled and machine-vibrated gabions will be produced on-site, maximizing the value add and a best possible sustainable project delivery.

The timeline for this undertaking is demanding, requiring significant effort from our Swedish execution team, commencing from mid-January, and anticipated to conclude within the first half of 2024.
