About Axvik Group
Axvik is a company that invests in and develops specialised companies in the aerospace and defence industry to create long-term value. Through Turntime Technologies, Slingsby Advanced Composites and Pentaxia, Axvik develops and supplies critical components and systems for aircraft manufacturers, airlines and defence groups. Each of the companies holds an established position in its niche market, with deep technical expertise and customer relationships built over many years. The companies are run independently by experienced management teams with a strong customer focus, while Axvik provides capital and strategic support for growth. Axvik is headquartered in Stockholm and has approximately 300 employees across the group in Sweden and the United Kingdom.

The company's shares are traded on Nasdaq First North Growth Market in Stockholm (ticker: AXVIK). The company's Certified Adviser is Bergs Securities AB. For more information, visit https://www.axvik.com.
