PRECiSE BIOMETRICS

The subscription period for Precise Biometrics' rights issue of approximately SEK 110 million begins today

Today, July 29, 2026, the subscription period for Precise Biometrics' rights issue of approximately SEK 110 million begins. The funds raised through the rights issue will be used to finance the integration following the merger with Fingerprint Cards, realize identified synergies, and create the conditions for continued growth. The rights issue is covered by guarantee commitments totaling SEK 100 million from, among others, DNB Bank ASA and Schonfeld Global Master Fund LP.

AI, deepfakes, the growing threat of identity fraud, a changing security landscape and stricter regulatory requirements are driving rapidly growing demand for trusted identity verification and secure access across both digital and physical environments. As a result, biometrics has evolved from a convenience feature into a critical security technology that uniquely combines robust security with a seamless user experience.

Through the merger with Fingerprint Cards, Precise Biometrics has expanded its offering in biometric security, access, and identity. The combined company brings together industry-leading algorithms, software, sensors, biometric systems, and deep expertise in biometrics and AI, supported by a global customer base. The company's technology is already deployed in hundreds of millions of devices worldwide and enables billions of authentications every day.

The subscription period runs from July 29 to August 12, 2026. The full terms and conditions of the rights issue, together with additional information, are available on the Precise Biometrics website:

Joakim Nydemark, CEO of Precise Biometrics, comments:

> "The demand for secure, seamless access and authentication is growing rapidly as AI, digitalization, and an evolving threat landscape reshape security requirements. Through the merger with Fingerprint Cards, we have created a stronger offering and a broader global platform. The rights issue provides us with the resources to carry out the integration, realize the synergies, and invest in continued growth in a market supported by powerful growth drivers."
