

Argo Defence Group's subsidiary Disarmament Solutions signs reseller agreement with Ukrainian defence technology company Buntar Aerospace, strengthening its position within unmanned aircraft systems

Argo Defence Group AB's subsidiary, Disarmament Solutions AB, has signed a reseller agreement with Buntar Aerospace, a Ukrainian defence technology company developing unmanned aircraft systems (UAS) with advanced autonomous capabilities that enable coordination between multiple platforms, enhanced mission planning, and improved situational awareness within an integrated operational ecosystem. Buntar Aerospace offers operationally proven solutions developed based on experience gained from the ongoing conflict in Ukraine, where the technology has been continuously refined to meet modern operational requirements – making them highly relevant for current defence challenges.

Through the partnership, Disarmament Solutions will market and introduce Buntar Aerospace' product portfolio to relevant government authorities, defence organisations and security sector stakeholders.

The agreement complements Disarmament Solutions' existing exclusive partnership with the Lithuanian defence technology company RSI Europe, covering, among other solutions, FPV drones and Remote Initiation Systems. Together, these agreements strengthen the company's offering in advanced unmanned systems and modern defence solutions.

"Our partnership with Buntar Aerospace represents an important step in our strategy to provide customers with access to market-leading and operationally proven technology. Combined with our existing exclusive agreement with RSI Europe, this strengthens our position within unmanned systems and broadens our portfolio to meet the rapidly evolving needs of the defence and security sectors. Buntar Aerospace has developed solutions based on real-world operational experience from Ukraine, making their products highly relevant to today's and tomorrow's defence challenges," says Marcus Selme, CEO of Argo Defence Group AB.
