

Acconeer signs a distribution agreement with South Korean Uniquist

The radar technology company Acconeer AB has signed a distribution agreement with Uniquist, the largest distributor of electronic components in South Korea. Initially the agreement includes the A1 product and covers the South Korean market. Uniquist has been a close partner to Acconeer over the past years, both as a large shareholder and help in addressing South Korean customers.

Lars Lindell, CEO of Acconeer, comments “We are very pleased that we can announce the signing of this agreement with Uniquist. This is the next step in our roll out strategy and will enable us to ship products in volume in the South Korean market. The South Korean market will be very important to Acconeer and Uniquist is the best partner for us”

Jason Lee, COO of Uniquist, comments “Uniquist have followed Acconeer for long time and seen a very strong interest from our customers in Acconeer’s unique radar sensor, and their work in developing a cutting-edge technology that has many potential application areas. We look forward on serving Acconeer on the South Korean market.”
