

First Smart Power Distribution Units Batch Ordered

Lokotech AS has now placed its first production order for its in-house developed Smart Power Distribution Unit, also known as «SPDU». The SPDU underwent very successful pilot testing at a client site in the U.S.

The order, which is limited in scale, is intended for customer sampling before a broader sales launch. A broader launch will happen later this year, when the full product suite has completed required certification. The full suite is intended to cover a majority of the most popular legacy machines out there, and is intended to drastically ease fleet management, load balancing, and correct invoicing for hosters without tying up excessive capital in more generalized infrastructure and without the need to replace existing power supplies.

Large scale miners and hosting facilities are welcome to contact sales@lokotech.no to organize for a sample and/or reserve future units.

See also <https://lokotech.com/products/lokotech-spdu> for more information