

XMReality AB (publ) informs the market of ongoing contract negotiations with customers

Linköping, Sweden—XMReality AB (publ) (NASDAQ First North: XMR).

As a publicly listed company XMReality disclose, in accordance with the EU Market Abuse Regulation (MAR), all major customer agreements through press releases. Nasdaq Stockholm decided this morning to halt trading in XMReality's stock and has requested the company to release to the market so far unpublished insider information. It is the company's assessment that the price movements during the Tuesday is not a result of information leakage.

The company consequently wishes to inform the market that it is in negotiations with two existing global customers, a global engineering group, with a yearly turnover of approx. SEK 300 billion regarding a general agreement and sales order and an American defense group, with a yearly turnover above SEK 200 billion regarding a sales order. A general agreement with the engineering group does not mean any sales orders in themselves. Its conditions will apply to new subscriptions and the renewal of existing ones. The same customer has also placed an additional sales order worth SEK 0,6 million. This order, together with already running subscriptions will, under the agreement, result in annual recurrent revenue of approx. SEK 1,2 million. The negotiation with the American defense group concerns a sales order corresponding approx. SEK 1,5 million. This order value also refer to yearly recurring revenue. At present, it is not possible to determine whether these negotiations will result in actual contracts.

With regard to both customers, the agreements would provide for global usage of the XMReality Remote Guidance software.

In addition to the above information the company is also negotiating a collaboration agreement with an additional third party supplier of smart glasses.

XMReality will notify the market of the outcome of the negotiations as soon as concrete information is available.
