

Leading gas spring manufacturer deploys XMReality Remote Guidance worldwide

Linköping, Sweden—XMReality AB (publ) (NASDAQ First North: XMR), an international leader in AR-enabled knowledge sharing, has signed an agreement with Strömsholmen, a global leading manufacturer of gas springs and gas hydraulic systems for press tools and heavy off-road vehicles. Agreement software value is approx. 0.5 MSEK annual recurring revenue.

Strömsholmen has decided to launch XMReality Remote Guidance™ globally. The solution will be used for internal efficiency improvements by enabling remote collaboration, and to ensure quicker and a higher quality of service to its distributors and customers.

“In a market with continuously increasing competition we need to be innovative and identify other means to keep our market leader position. By this cooperation with XMReality we are able to strengthen our motto “The safer choice” by offering the best and most efficient customer support out there”, says Johan Klang, Product & Innovation Manager at Strömsholmen.

“Our AR solution for global remote collaboration is ideal for companies such as Strömsholmen, having offices and partners in 46 countries around the world. It is very encouraging to see how more and more industries are beginning to see how our solution can enable faster and more accurate customer service”, says Johan Castevall, CEO XMReality.

The order includes XMReality Remote Guidance software, XMReality Web Client, and XMReality PointPad™. The software value is approx. 0,5 MSEK annual recurring revenue and will be recognized during 2019.
