

Norwegian company Dimensjon becomes part of XPartners

XPartners is strengthening its competence within building and civil engineering in Norway and welcomes Dimensjon to the group. The company delivers engineering services in design and project management, adding solid technical expertise in a market with increasing demand.

Dimensjon was established in 2020 and has offices in Oslo and Ålesund, as well as additional office space in Drammen. The company has around ten employees and operates in two main areas: project management and structural engineering. In structural engineering, the firm has designed a number of large timber buildings in Norway. Dimensjon runs projects across the country, with a strong concentration in the Østlandet area and the Ålesund region. In the 2024 financial year, the company generated just over NOK 15 million in revenue.

“It is very positive that Dimensjon is now becoming part of XPartners. The company is well recognised in the Norwegian market and clearly strengthens our offering within structural engineering. This creates new opportunities to collaborate with other companies in the group and gives us better conditions to deliver strong projects together with our clients,” says Christian Nørgaard Madsen, Managing Director at XPartners Norway.

The customer base includes clients within residential, office, retail, industrial and public building projects, with demand driven by both new construction and the further development or renovation of existing structures.

“We are pleased to become part of XPartners and look forward to continuing to develop Dimensjon together with more specialists. The opportunity to retain our identity while gaining access to a larger network and broader expertise is important for us and for our clients. It provides a solid platform for continued growth,” says Odd Grøthe, CEO of Dimensjon.
