Terry Powell joins Permascand as Sales Manager for North America

Permascand's sales team is excited to welcome Terry Powell to the company and the Industrial Solutions business segment. He will be focusing on the company's expansion in the chloralkali market and is going to be a great addition to Permascand's growth strategy in North America.

Terry Powell is a Chemical Engineer and before joining Permascand he worked at Verantis Corporation, an engineering firm specializing in air pollution control. He began as an Applications Engineer and took on progressively more responsible roles including Technical Sales Director and most recently as the Director of Applications Engineering. He describes his latest roles as customer-facing and sales process focused.

"I am very pleased to have joined Permascand! I look forward to contributing to sustainability by increasing the use of innovative solutions in the industrial market. Superior efficiency is of great value in any production and to help reduce our carbon footprint", says Terry Powell.
