Takbyrån i Alingsås is awarded a framework agreement with the City of Borås worth up to SEK 45 million

The solar tech company Takbyrån i Alingsås has been awarded the City of Borås's framework agreement for roofing services in cardboard and PVC roofs. The agreement covers roofing work on the municipality's property portfolio and has a total value of up to SEK 45 million over four years. The agreement will enter into force on 1 July 2026.

Takbyrån i Alingsås is an established roofing contracting company with specialist expertise in waterproofing, roofing, roof service and solar energy. The company works with both public and private clients and focuses on quality, safety and long-term customer relationships.

The new framework agreement for the company means that Takbyrån will perform roofing services at, among other things, schools, preschools, homes and business premises within the City of Borås. The assignment includes both cardboard roofs and PVC-based waterproofing systems as well as associated self-inspections, waterproofing protocols and work environment management.

The framework agreement creates the conditions for long-term cooperation and means that assignments will be called off continuously during the agreement period based on the municipality's needs.

"This is a strategically important agreement for us. The City of Borås places high demands on documentation, work environment, safety and professional execution, and we are proud to have been entrusted with being one of the municipality's partners in roofing. We look forward to a long-term collaboration where we will contribute with sustainable and safe roof solutions for the municipality's properties," says Andreas Nordström, CEO of Takbyrån i Alingsås.
