FRANCKS KYLINDUSTRI SIGNS AGREEMENT TO ACQUIRE BRIAN A. FLYNN IN IRELAND

Francks Kylindustri Group Holding AB (Francks), a Nordic specialist in commercial and industrial refrigeration, has signed an agreement to acquire Brian A. Flynn Limited (BAF).

Founded in 1972 and based in Newcastle West, County Limerick, BAF specializes in Industrial Refrigeration / HVAC. Its capabilities span design and engineering, prefabrication, turnkey installation, commissioning and validation, alongside ongoing service and maintenance. The company has particular expertise in the biotech, pharmaceutical, life sciences and food & beverage sectors, where reliability and compliance with demanding technical standards are essential.

“We are delighted to have reached this agreement with BAF, a business that combines specialist expertise in cooling for highly regulated environments with strong engineering and service capabilities. This is an exciting step in Francks’ International expansion, acquiring a strong platform in Ireland and bringing valuable expertise and capabilities to the wider Group. We very much look forward to welcoming the BAF team following completion, building on their achievements and developing new opportunities together across our entire Group,” says Sören Jensen, CEO of Francks Kylindustri.

“BAF has been built over more than five decades through the dedication of our people and the trust of our customers. Choosing the right partner for its next chapter was therefore particularly important to us. In Francks, we see a partner who values what we have built and brings the expertise and resources to help us take the business forward. We are excited about what will be achieved together,” says BAF.

Completion remains subject to clearance from Ireland’s Competition and Consumer Protection Commission (CCPC).

Completion of the transaction will be announced in due course.
