

Swedish TKAB joins XPartners

XPartners is establishing a strategic foothold in northern Sweden and welcomes Teknikkonsulterna i Norrbotten (TKAB) to the group. TKAB is a technology-focused consultancy specialised in energy, automation and electrical design for the process and industrial sectors, with a clear profile in the mining industry. The acquisition strengthens XPartners' offering in industrial power, automation and control engineering, and creates strong potential for collaboration across the XPartners network.

Founded in 2018, TKAB is located in Kiruna, Gällivare and Luleå. The company delivers advanced design and engineering within automation, electrical power, energy, ventilation and HVAC, as well as project management, technical leads, construction management, training and commissioning of various process plants. In the 2024 financial year, the company generated just over SEK 26 million in revenue and has grown significantly in 2025.

"TKAB gives us an important, long-term presence in northern Sweden and strengthens the group's capacity in industrial electrical and control engineering. The team combines extensive experience from the mining sector with a pragmatic execution focus that fits well with our model. We also see significant collaboration opportunities within XPartners," says Magnus Trollius, Managing Director of XPartners Sweden.

TKAB's assignments include, among other things, replacement of switchgear during maintenance shutdowns, design of new electrical and control installations in industrial and office environments, and new safety systems with emergency-stop functions. TKAB works closely with industrial processes from feasibility through commissioning and training, with high requirements on availability and minimised downtime.

"We are very pleased to become part of XPartners. The group gives us great opportunities to collaborate across multiple disciplines and share expertise, methods and resources. At the same time, it gives us the freedom and confidence to continue running our business on our own terms and to invest long term in our team and capabilities," says Simon Lahti, co-founder of TKAB.
