WPTG proposes PwC as Group auditor from 2026

White Pearl Technology Group AB (“WPTG”, the “Group” or the “Company”) announces that the Company has agreed, subject to shareholder approval, to appoint PwC as the Group’s auditor from the 2026 financial year. The proposed appointment will be submitted to WPTG’s Annual General Meeting on 3 June 2026 for approval by shareholders.

The Board and management believe that the proposed appointment of PwC represents an important step in WPTG’s continued development as a global listed technology group. As WPTG expands its operations across multiple geographies, strengthens its Nordic and European presence, and continues to pursue a disciplined growth strategy, the Group requires an audit partner with the scale, international reach, and sector experience to support its next phase of maturity.

PwC’s appointment aligned with WPTG’s growth

PwC’s global network, experience with listed companies, and understanding of complex international groups are expected to support WPTG in further strengthening financial reporting, governance, internal controls, and investor confidence. The appointment is also aligned with WPTG’s ambition to build a more institutional, transparent, and scalable platform as the Group continues to grow organically and through acquisitions.

Subject to the required independence rules applicable to statutory auditors, PwC’s broader professional expertise and international perspective are also expected to complement WPTG’s existing network of professional advisers as the Group continues to enhance its governance, reporting, and operational infrastructure.

Auditor-in-Charge

The Auditor-in-Charge for the assignment is Patric Kruse.

“WPTG has grown rapidly into a global technology group with operations across several markets. As we continue to scale, strengthen our Nordic and European platform, and build a company capable of meeting higher institutional standards, it is important that our audit framework evolves with us. The proposed appointment of PwC reflects our commitment to stronger governance, greater transparency, and continued professionalisation of the Group. We believe PwC’s international reach and experience with complex listed groups will be highly valuable as WPTG enters its next phase of growth,” - Group CEO Marco Marangoni
